Ingredients

- 1¾ lb quinces (2 large)
- 4 cups water
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 12 oz bag fresh or frozen cranberries (do not thaw; 3½ cups)

Instructions

1. Peel, quarter, and core the quinces, reserving the peel and cores, then cut the quarters into ¼-inch pieces. Tie up the peel and cores in cheesecloth.
2. Bring the water and sugar to a boil in a 4-quart heavy saucepan, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Add the quince and the cheesecloth bundle and simmer, partially covered, until the quince is tender, about 1½ hours.
3. Add the cranberries and simmer, uncovered, stirring occasionally, until the cranberries burst and soften, 8 to 10 minutes.
4. Drain the mixture in a large medium-mesh sieve set over a bowl, discarding the cheesecloth bundle and reserving the cranberry solids. Return the cooking liquid to the pan and boil, uncovered, until syrupy and reduced to about 1½ cups, 5 to 10 minutes.
5. Stir together the syrup and cranberry mixture in a bowl, then cool to room temperature.

Special equipment: an 8-inch square of cheesecloth; kitchen string. Active time: 30 min; start to finish: 2½ hr. Makes about 5 cups.
